

AIA Seattle 2005 Honor Awards for Washington Architecture
Design Challenge: A Place of Remembrance ENTRIES

D900 urban anomaly	MBT Architecture Ed Breen, Tony DeEulio, Tosh Drake, Jeffrey Goupil, Kelly Jarrell, Krisi Paulson
D905 homeless/memorial	Nakano Associates Kenichi Nakano, Theresa Neylon, Celena Peet
D910 154 South Main Street	Yousman Okano, Jon Gentry, Blair Payson, Evan Harlan, Cody Lodi
D915 pavilion of well-being	William Franklin AIA
D920 Edge	Environmental Works: Jan Gleason AIA, Roger Tucker AIA, Robert Kiker, Rumi Takahashi, Matthew Sullivan, Matt Eaton, Sally Knodell, David Sarti, Jessica Branch
D925 Cardboard Cemetery	Bassetti Architects: Yinsze Lam AIA, Kimber Keagle
D935 Loss & Hope	Relative Velocity Design Group Alexander Clark & Kim Sherman
D945 Life Markings	SkB Architects, with Wolken Communica
D950 Blocks with Seasonal Trees	Janet Tufte

CITATION

D955 Footprints Design Team: Jury comment:	Callison Architecture Katie Freels, Jennifer Dalley, Peter Krech “We found this entry comprehensive in its address of the physical and emotional experiences of homelessness, its way of bringing special meaning to places where homeless and non-homeless people gather, and its respect for the individuals memorialized. Its form addresses the nature of transience, illustrates the relationship of our bodies to the earth, and recognizes the places of homelessness in our city. We appreciated the comments of Seattle City Councilmember Peter Steinbrueck, who described this proposal as ‘doable,’ with its attention to the practical details of materializing such a memorial in a city busy with many concerns and projects. “We appreciated the breadth and diversity of the entries, their way of coming to terms with ‘a place for the placeless,’ finding a material form for an issue not contained in one location.”
--	---

D960 Incomplete	Callison Architecture
D965 Manifest	Andy Herrick
D 970 Broken Walls	Anonymous WHEEL Supporter
D975 A Gathering Place	Callison Architecture: Marlo Dowell, Thomas Bath
D980 Transfer	Weldon Butler
D985 Remembrance Wall	Anitra Freeman
D990 Out of the Elements/Pentagon	Anonymous